Chapter 2 - The Dragon Pens	3

1 - The Thing Under the Couch

"May!" Blue Said for the third time.

"Wha-?" I said, confused. I was daydreaming about how cute Firestorm's baby must be.

I sighed and said, "Sorry, I just can't stop thinking about Skysong. She's got to be so adorable!"

"The Dragons will wait for you to come." Blue said a little impatiently. "But this isn't going to get itself done."

I glanced over to what he was pointing at. I shuddered. "Do I really have to clean that?" I said, disgusted.

"While you were off in dragonland, I cleaned both of our bedrooms, the bathroom, and the computer room. All you have to clean, is that." He pointed again at the mess. I glared at him.

"All right," I sighed. "I guess I'd better start then." Blue shrugged and walked tot he door.

"I'll be at the palace if you need me." and he walked out the door while I glared after him.

I looked at the mess. I decided that burning the pile of stuff that had collected under the couch for the last year wouldn't work. Neither would simply teleporting it away do any good. I stared at it for a couple of minutes, until i remembered something. "I'VE GOT IT!" I shouted in triumph. I rushed over to the computer and said, "Call Red and Kajah."

"Calling," said the computer voice.

Within seconds the screen turned from black to showing Red and Kajah in their house.

"May!" The twins shouted.

I laughed, "Hey guys."

The wins looked at each other then back at me. "What do you have for us?"

"Blue made me clean under the couch, and I found a bunch of stuff that you might be able to use.

Wanna come over and look at it?"

They both glanced over their shoulders and said, " Sure, anything to get away form Dr. Clean. Bakura is making clean our room!" They both shuddered. "See you there!" and the screen went blank.

I went back and looked at the mess, hoping taht the twins could find someting they could use. They were building something for some contest. I wasn't sure what the contest was exactly. They wouldn't let anyone see what they were building either.

Just then, the computer said, "Red and Kajah are here."

"Thanks," I called back as I ran to the door.

If I didn't get this cleaned I wouldn't have time to do anything I needed -or wanted- to do, like seeing Skysong. I had to get to the Dragon Pends before they close. Of course, I could just ask Lance to get me in. But I wouldn't need to ask him if this mess could just disappear!

I opened the door and let the twins in. As they walked in Red said, "Ok. Where's the loot?" I laughed and replied, "Right over here. I don't know if anything there will be of any use to you, but I thought I'd ask you, just in case."

Kajah nodded and said, "Lead us to the treasure!" I walked back to the living room and showed them the pile. I watched as their faces lit up in huge grins as they looked at everything. "We could use all of this stuff! We've been looking for most of this stuff, but we couldn't find it anywere! Thank you so much!" The twins said gleefully.

"Thank you, I wouldn't know what else to do with it all," I replied. They gathered all the stuff and headed back to the door.

"Thanks again! See you later May!"

"See you guys later!"

2 - The Dragon Pens

As soon as they left, I grabbed my Azi-Kan, Azi for short, and bolted out the door.

I live in Nephram, the city of Angels, literally, because that's what we are, Angels. We each have our own power and element. Or in rare cases, like mine, elements. My brother, Blue's, power is to control water and ice. Kajah's power is to control earth, like rocks and dirt and stuff. Red's power is control of electricity. My powers are control of Fire, psychic, and I'm a shape-shifter.

Every Angel or Demon, has a creature they are bonded to. When we are little, we are taken to the habitats where we are shown all of the different creatures. When we see one we like, we tell the handlers and they let you play with them for a while. We play with them until every one has found his or her creature. My creature is a Kyra, a kind of large cream colored fox with nine tails. Her name is Kari. As soon as I walked out the door, Kari stood up from where she was sitting, waiting for me, and said, "We are going to see Skysong." It wasn't a question. Bonded Angels and Demons all have a special relationship with their creatures. We can read each others mind and talk telepathically, but then, all Angels and Demons are telepathic. We can choose who to talk telepathically to, and we can talk through walls and long distances. There is a limit though, usually it is a couple of miles, but it can be longer depending on the strength of the Angel or Demon.
