A song I wrote in a state of depression. There have been many outlooks on this one. My favorite is that the song is about a murderer, called loneliness. But the true meaning is much deeper. I will leave it open to interpretation...

Solitude

Verse 1:

Here I am lost in my darkest hour

The empty expressions have left me feeling sour

I tried to run but I couldn't hide

From the misguided honor these words confide

The wicked within has scarred the soul

My world is spinning, I'm out of control

Chorus:

Discard the love you hold within

Open your heart and welcome the sin

Feel the heat, it's ever so rude

Your soul is trapped in my solitude

Verse 2:

There is no escape from the torment you hold

This isn't a game, you cannot fold

Out of the light to the darkness you crept

You're most held secret will not be kept

This is the end as you feel the pain

Do not be afraid, you are going insane

Chorus X2

Verse 3:

You're covered with wounds that will not heal

Endless pain is all that you feel

Your heart is driven by the darkest of needs

From the sins you commit the evil will feed

As you feel the torture within your heart

The hatred takes over, and tears you apart

With all you've lost the void is filled

There's no turning back the deal was sealed

Your mind has faded, you're soul's enslaved

Now my solitude will be your grave
