And then there was Bella...

Summary: What was the real reason Edward took Bella to meet the rest of the family? Maybe it was because he overheard his parent's conversation...

A/N: What me and a friend came up with in class...

Disclaimer: I don't own Carlisle...or the rest of Twilight TTTT

Carlisle and Esme sat down on the couch and whispered privately to themselves. Edward wasn't home (well, that they knew of), but what if Alice or Rosalie heard and decided to tell him? And if Emmett heard, he might never let Edward live it down. They didn't want that to happen, though.

"What if he's gay? I mean, I've heard of some gay vampires, but even if there aren't many..." Esme started.

A thump – like someone had just fallen out of a chair – was heard from above.

"I don't know. Because he didn't really like Rosalie, and he hasn't showed any interest in anything like that..." Carlisle continued.

"Well, even if E-he is," Esme just barely corrected her mistake. "We have to be supportive parents."

A coughing sound - which sounded more like a muffled laugh now came from above. Maybe Emmett or someone was listening?

"Yes. But what if the guy doesn't like him back? Wont that be a problem?"

"Good point...we don't want him to be heart broken right after he found someone he likes, even if it is a guy..."

Then, Emmett walked in.

"You know, if your gonna talk about this, maybe you should include Edward into this conversation. He might have some pretty interesting comments to say about it. I mean, I wouldn't know what its like to be gay, cause I've got Rosalie, and I don't think Alice would appreciate it if you got Jasper, but since Edward doesn't like anybody at the moment..." Emmett said, jokingly, because he already knew what they were talking about.

"That might be a good idea..." Carlisle commented.

"No! What if he gets offended?" Esme said quickly, before Emmett had a chance to get him.

Carlisle didn't have anything to say to this.

Then, they finally heard someone laughing upstairs. Maybe something funny happened?

"And by the way, haven't you guys been wondering what's going on upstairs? I keep hearing strange noises..." Emmett said smirking. He knew exactly why the strange noises were coming from upstairs.

"Would you please go check?" Esme asked politely.

"Whatever." Emmett muttered, turning to go back upstairs.

Esme turned to look at Carlisle. "Edward's not home, right?"

Carlisle shrugged. "I don't think he is. He shouldn't be...he hasn't been home at night much, lately..."

Esme's eyes went wide as her husband said this. Maybe her gay theory was wrong? Or maybe he's been going to see a guy...

"Damn it, Emmett! Are you trying to kill me?!" Edward screamed.

Esme and Carlisle didn't move. Edward had been home the entire time.

"I found it." He said, throwing a shocked Edward into the room.

"Edward...did...you...?" Carlisle couldn't even finish. He didn't have to.

"Just in case you're wondering, I do have a girlfriend."

A/N: I don't know if that was a good ending, but whatever. I had fun writing it! PLEASE REVIEW!!!
