1 - Chapter one (can't think of anything else right now)

It's a random fanfic by HAKUYASHA.

Hinata's mom said to Hinata, "I think you should go outside, Neji's looking for you." Hinata sighed and picked up a white bandanna, which she tied around her black hair. She then surveyed her reflection to make sure she looked okay. She approved of her look: a black, knee-length skirt, a black short-sleeved shirt covered by a navy blue vest, her red backpack, a Poké Watch (red, of course), and her black hair tied up neatly with a white bandanna. Slipping on her black sneakers, she ran outside. Waiting for her was a thin, blond-haired boy. His hair was styled in an odd, scruffy-looking fashion. He was wearing navy blue shorts, an orange scarf, a black shirt hidden by a white-and-green striped vest, and black sneakers similar to Hinata's.

He said when he saw her, "Hinata, I've been waiting forever! What took you so long?!"

Hinata replied, "Neji, it's been two minutes. Will you ever be patient?"

Neji said, "Okay, whatever. Anyways, do you want to go out to the lake to look for a Pokémon? I saw a news story about a red Gyarados in a lake in Johto, maybe there's something cool in our lake!"

Hinata sighed, "Neji, we're not going to find anything. I'll go with you anyways, though." The two kids ran off towards the lake, Neji in the lead. When they reached the lake, Neji pointed out to the middle of the lake.

"Hey, Hinata. Is that an island? I've never seen that before." Without waiting for an answer, he jumped in the water and began to swim to the mysterious island. Hinata shrugged and followed him after removing her shoes and leaving them on the shore. Finally, the boy and his friend climbed out of the water. Neji shook his head, flinging water everywhere. He then investigated the stones on the island. Hinata pointed to a rock that stuck out of a huge boulder. "Try pushing that, it might do something." The blond boy pushed on the stone, which sunk into the large rock. A door opened from the spot where Neji pushed the rock.

Neji said, "Hinata, let's go in. I think this will be really cool!"

Hinata nervously stated, "Neji, are you sure this is such a good idea? There could be anything in there. I really don't think-"

Neji interrupted, "We'll be fine, I promise." The two friends walked into the cavern. They walked through a small tunnel, eventually coming to a chamber lit by a hole in the ceiling. A pink-and-blue Pokémon with two tails appeared to be sleeping in the middle of the cavern. Neji walked over and poked it.

Hinata cried, "Neji, don't do that! We don't even know what kind of Pokémon that is!" The Pokémon woke up, then looked at the two friends. It floated to a point between the two, moved its hands, then flung them outside with psychic power. They landed just past a tall grass field separated from where they lived by a dangerous forest. Both kids were knocked unconscious when they hit the ground.

2 - Now you know why it's weird.

Things are getting interesting.

Hinata woke up. She looked around. She appeared to be in a small meadow. Just past the tall grass was the lake. Well, there was no way to get home except cross the tall grass and swim, as the forest was very dangerous. However, the tall grass was dangerous too. You could be attacked by a wild Pokémon at any second. Someone tapped her on the shoulder.

“Earth to Hinata, extreme weirdness is in the area. Why do you look like me?” She turned to see someone who looked exactly like her. She glanced at herself and found that she looked exactly like Neji. What? How did THAT happen?

Hinata shrugged and said, “I bet that was a Psychic Pokémon. Maybe it made us switch bodies or something like that.”

At that moment, the Pokémon flew over their heads and cried, “Mesprit me!” Neji (who now appeared to be Hinata) chased after it, yelling “Stop! Come back here!” The Mesprit didn’t listen and flew off into the forest.

Hinata looked out to the water. She asked, “So, how do you propose we get through the tall grass so we can swim back?”

Neji walked back. He suggested, “I guess we could find a wild Pokémon and ask it to help us out in exchange for some food.”

Hinata replied, “Well, it’s not like we have options. Let’s look for wild Pokémon.” She walked off to find a wild Pokémon, and Neji looked in another direction. A small yellow Pokémon with black hind legs and a black tail was looking curiously at a flower.

Feeling silly, Hinata said, “Um, little yellow Pokémon? Do you think you could help me out? I’ll give you some food if you’ll help me get through the tall grass without being attacked.” The yellow Pokémon looked at her, nodded, and said, “Shinx.” Hinata questioned, “Uh, does that mean yes?” The Shinx nodded again. Hinata told it, “Okay. We’ll be going with a friend of mine.” She walked back to where she left Neji.

Neji said, “Hinata, this Pokémon agreed to help me out.” Standing next to him was a blue Shinx. The yellow Shinx looked at the blue one and smiled. The two Shinxes walked to the tall grass and waited for Neji and Hinata to follow. After a few minutes, they were at the edge of the water.

Neji and Hinata gave the Shinxes each a piece of bread and a strawberry. The two Pokémon ran off into the forest with their food.

Hinata jumped in the water and said, “Come on, Neji. We need to get back home; we’ve been gone for an hour.” Neji nodded and followed her to the edge of the lake by their homes. Neji stopped at the edge of the water.

“How will we explain this to our parents?”

Hinata answered, “I hadn’t thought about that. Do you have any ideas?”

Neji thought for a minute, then said, “We can just tell them what happened.”

“That works. Let’s go.” Neji took a moment to put on the shoes Hinata had left on the shore, seeing as he was in Hinata’s body. The two ran off to tell their parents what had gone on. A pair of Shinxes walked towards Twinleaf town where Hinata and Neji lived.
